PRICE TWO CENTS

EXEMPTION TOTAL IN EXCESS OF 1915

GREAT CROWD HEAR CONCERTS AT PARK

Mortgaged Property Valued at $360,290, Exclusive of Seymour, Released From Taxation.

INCREASE OF $42,450 IS SHOWN

Board of Review to Complete Report
Tomorrow and Will Then Take up the Assessments.

The aggregate value of the mortgage exemptions filed in Jackson county this year is greatly in excess of the total filed in 1915, according to figures today compiled from the report of the County Board of Review which embraces all corporations with the exception of the City of Seymour. Exclusive of the single corporation the mortgage exemptions totaled $360,290. This is $42,450 more than the exemptions filed one year ago which totaled $317,840.

The Board of Review which convened June 5th spent the entire first week verifying the exemption figures filed in the various townships and other corporations. The work is not yet quite completed but it is expected that the board will finish verifying the figures from this city late today or tomorrow. The figures on file in the office of County Auditor Luedtke show that of the corporations reported each shows an increase of exemptions with the exception of Vernon township. One year ago the total exemptions amounted to $37,480 while this year the exemptions are valued at $32,480 in Vernon township.

The increase in the larger number of mortgages is accounted by the large number of real estate transfers during twelve months prior to March 1, this year. It is explained that many farmers have purchased land and not having the full amount of the purchase price have given mortgages on the farms and accordingly filed exemptions so as to avoid payment of taxes on the amount that is due. It is also said that a larger number of taxpayers are filing exemptions than formerly as they have found that if they owe a considerable amount they can avoid taxation on a portion of it.

The total mortgage exemptions filed in each corporation of the county this year and also in 1915 is given below:

	1915	1916
Driftwood	$26,060	$27,630
Grassy Fork	24,580	27,120
Brownstown	33,060	39,100
Washington	10,290	17,450
Hamilton	28,240	31,070
Jackson	21,850	28,230
Redding	31,710	38,000
Vernon	37,480	32,480
Carr	19,330	21,530
Owen	26,680	29,250
Salt Creek	16,670	19,610
B'town Town	22,170	26,750
Crothersville	9,870	11,070
Medora	9,850	11,000
	317,840	360,290

The Board of Review expects to finish the examination of the mortgage exemptions by tomorrow and will enter at once upon a verification of the assessment figures filed by the various township trustees. The Board has the authority to change any assessment. The various assessment slips are taken up separately by the members of the board and the total of each is verified. It is announced that any taxpayer is privileged to appear at any time before the board to make objection to his assessment.

LOCAL B. & O. TEAM WINS FROM LOUISVILLE, 2 TO 0

Seymour Railroaders Play Great Game at Louisville—Double Header Here Sunday.

Playing a fast and errorless game of ball the local B. & O. team yesterday won its second game, shutting out the Louisville team at Shawnee Park, 2 to 0. Green, who did the pitching for the Seymour team, twirled a masterful game and was given perfect support. He allowed but four hits. The Louisville pitcher was also in form, and let the locals down with three hits. However the Seymour players took advantage of every opening and worked around their first scores in the fourth and added another in the seventh when Bowman scored from second on an error. Mendell's batting was an important feature of the local's attack, the outfielder poling out two long drives. The local team appeared in their new uniforms and made a most favorable impression on Louisville fans who saw the game.

Next Sunday the fans will get their first chance to see the B. & O. boys in action, and a double header will probably be arranged. At 1 o'clock the Cincinnati B. & O. team will be taken on, and following this game will be played with the Ottos. The Cincinnati team was defeated 7 to 4, by the locals at Storrs two weeks ago.

The line up of the Seymour team in yesterday's game was as follows: Lough, 1 b; Chaills, 2 b; French, 3 b; McOske, ss; Mendell, 1. f; Bowman, c. f; Kolemeyer, r. f; Payne, c. Green, p.

Capt. Lough says that probably one or two more changes will be made in the line up and that then the team will be kept intact for the remainder of the season. He is confident that the locals will be in the running for the honor of playing in the finals to determine the championship of the B. & O. system.

BARN OWNED BY JOHN FINK TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE

Owner Was in Seymour at Time of Fire and Did Not Know of Loss Until Return Home.

A barn owned by John Fink, living south of the city, and valued at $2,100 was burned to the ground about 9:45 o'clock Saturday night. The owner was in Seymour at the time of the fire and did not know of his loss until his arrival home. The fire was discovered by persons who passed the farm in a machine. At the time of the discovery the entire interior of the structure was in flames and effort was centered towards surrounding buildings. The barn was practically empty, Mr. Fink having had a sale several weeks ago at which time he sold most of his horses. He kept two and these he had turned into the pasture before leaving his home for Seymour Saturday afternoon. Mr. Fink stated this afternoon that his loss was practically covered by insurance.

Errors were responsible for the game which the Ottos lost yesterday to the Athletics of North Vernon, by a score of 3 to 1, all of the visitors runs being the result of bobbles behind Voyle, who pitched plenty good enough ball to win.

The locals were also weak with the willow, being unable to unwind the offerings of Mr. Stemm, the North Vernon mound artist, with any degree of success.

HUGHES CONFERS ABOUT CAMPAIGN

Republican Presidential Candidate Meets with the Party Leaders in New York.

RECEIVES

NEWSPAPERMAN

Unable to Say at This Time if Frank Hitchcock will be Selected National Chairman.

By United Press.

New York, June 12.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for president, opened his campaign with a rush to-day with a trip to New York for a conference with party leaders.

Hughes arrived at 7 a. m. and went directly to the Hotel Astor where he displayed true campaign form by sending word he would see newspaper men at once.

"Will you see Col Roosevelt?"

"I can't say anything on that, just now," replied the candidate with a smile.

"Will you see Col Roosevelt?"

"I can't say anything on that either," said Hughes.

He was in good humor and evidently overjoyed at his return to active politics in the role of Republican presidential nominee.

LOCAL REPUBLICANS ARE PLEASSED WITH THE TICKET

Nomination of Hughes and Fairbanks Enthusiastically Endorsed by Members of the Party.

That Republicans in this city are greatly pleased with the action of the Republican national convention in nominating Charles E. Hughes, of New York, and Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, as presidential and vice-presidential candidates was evident today from the enthusiastic comments heard concerning the work of the notable assemblage of party representatives in Chicago. Justice Hughes was the choice of many local Republicans four years ago. Many local people have followed the able work of Justice Hughes and are familiar with his record as governor of New York and in other offices to which he has been elevated by the voters.

Mr. Fairbanks' nomination as vice-president, of course, is gratifying to Hoosier Republicans. They are glad he is to become a factor in this campaign as they know that he is capable of fulfilling the office for which he was nominated. His private life is without a blemish and his record as a public official will serve him well in the coming campaign.

Louis Cooley, formerly a resident of this city, has moved to Greenwood, where he has accepted employment with the Interstate Public Service Company.

Two bandits were captured at the bridge, one of them a captain, according to the reports here. Two others were brought to Laredo and jailed under heavy guard. Another bandit is reported to be in jail at Webb.

Several truck loads of regulars and Texas militiamen left here for the scene of the raid and spread out hoping to head off the Mexicans.

PRESIDENT WILL REFUSE TO RECALL TROOPS FROM MEXICO

Note to Carranza Will Emphasize That Murderers at Santa Ysabel Have Not Been Punished.

By United Press.

Washington, June 12—The President's answer to the latest Carranza note demanding troop withdrawal or "explanation of their presence in view of their present idleness" will go to the first chief this week—before Wilson is renominated at St. Louis.

The note will politely but flatly refuse not only the withdrawal but even a rearrangement of the American troops. It was practically completed today.

Among reasons cited for not withdrawing troops now the president will emphasize the fact that the murderers at Santa Ysabel not only have not been punished but have not been apprehended. It will recite also recent raids on American soil.

MARSHALL TALKED FOR SECOND PLACE

Nomination of Fairbanks by Republicans Gives Impetus to Renomination of Indiana Man.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETS

Stage all Set for Democratic Convention—Contest of Texas Committee Heard.

(By Perry Arnold, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

St. Louis, June 12—The advance guard of the Democratic party gathered here today preparatory to the national convention which convenes here Wednesday for the first time in sixteen years with an absolute unanimity of opinion on its ticket, its platform and its campaign. Nothing but optimism prevailed the city.

The Democratic national committee met today to hear one contest involving the national committeeman from Texas. There was not enough fighting in this contest to arouse comment and the committee expected to merely mark time discussing it and finally decided it.

Nomination of Fairbanks for vice-president by the Republicans appears to make certain the renomination of Thomas R. Marshall, also of Indiana, by the Democrats.

Governor Major has a carefully nurtured boomer for second place job but the delegates all seem to talk Marshall.

Chairman William F. McCombs, of the Democratic national committee, announced today that he has prepared a resolution to submit to the platform committee asking for a plank for a constitutional amendment that would prevent a federal judge from being elected to any other office.

The resolution is the direct outgrowth of the nomination of Justice Hughes by the Republican convention but is so broad as to prevent any district judge from accepting any other office.

Among the tentative planks in the democratic platform is none on the subject of one term for president. William Jennings Bryan was responsible for the 1912 plank declaring for a single term, but Bryan will have no voice in the present convention and the platform will say nothing as to presidential terms.

The platform will cite the handling of both the European and American situations by the Democratic administration as having preserved peace and at the same time having upheld American honor.

DEMOCRATS DESPERATE IN SEARCH OF AID FOR WILSON

National Convention will Make Overtures to Progressives to Help in Campaign.

By United Press.

St. Louis, June 12.—That overtures will be made to the Progressive party to join the Democratic standard under Woodrow Wilson was learned today.

Democratic leaders here preparing to the convening of the national convention Wednesday would not deny that an attempt would be made by the democrats to adopt the farragous Progressive party.

Just what steps the democrats will take to attract the leaderless progressives was not definitely known, but it was suggested that the platform may be framed with the idea of drawing the Progressive vote for Wilson.

By United Press.

London, June 12—The complete rout of the Austrian army near Czernovitz was announced here to-day by the Russian embassy. ITALIANS ON OFFENSIVE Powerful Movement Against the Austrians is Started.

By United Press.

Rome, June 12—The Italian armies today took the offensive all along the Trento front making general advances. This movement, it is understood, is to be a powerful attack timed simultaneously with the Russian offensive and the reported withdrawal of Austrian troops from the Trento.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Lautzenheizer and son, Arthur, of Brownstown, were in the city Saturday night. Mr. Lautzenheizer is deputy county auditor.

At the close of the program refreshments were served and each baby given souvenirs of green and white ribbon bows and their picture taken.

The appeal of these veteran volunteers is not a call for charity. They simply point to the record and request the government to render equity to men who believed they have earned, and thus far failed to receive, equity.

"The present request for the proposed legislation is based on this five-fold sanction:

"1. The general merits of the case, including the magnitude, results and value of the service rendered, national expediency and patriotic gratitude.

"2. The pledges given by Congress and President Lincoln at the opening of the civil war to the several states and to the volunteers furnished by them.

"3. The action and policy of the government since the war in extending to practically all surviving officers of the regular army and navy special rewards exclusively for civil war service, which, contrary to the pledges referred to, have thus far been withheld from surviving volunteer officers.

"4. The commanding precedent furnished by the United States government in 1828 and 1832 in granting to the aged surviving officers of the revolutionary army full pay, limited to that of a captain, during the remainder of life.

"5. Present public sentiment in the nation, as shown among other proofs by the unanimous action of the legislatures of thirteen states, speaking for nearly 50,000,000 of our people, recommending the enactment of such a measure."

The report of the Senate committee on military affairs says:

"This action on the part of Congress is not one of almsgiving. All nations of the world have given special honors to their warrior officers, always recognizing by pay and distinguished recognition, or large money grants, their claim to superior consideration.

UNITED STATES HAS NEW LETTER BOXES

Uncle Sam's New Letter Boxes Will Be Ready About July 1.

By United Press.

Washington, June 12.—About the last of this month Uncle Sam will begin putting up the first of several hundred thousand new design letter boxes all over the country. The new box design is the joint product of post office department in Washington and the Art Commission of New York. While the design for the front was accepted by the post office department, the design for the ends is still subject to some modification, the design as a whole being termed somewhat conventional by post office officials. The preparation for a design for the new boxes was taken up by the Art Commission in April, 1914. It was at first proposed to mount these boxes on pedestals, but this was disapproved by the commission and the conclusion was reached to affix them to electric light poles. The Edison Company of New York offered a design, but it was so ornate that the post office department declined, on economical grounds, to consider it. The art commission then asked that the post office department appoint a committee to confer with the commission regarding a design for the box, and this was done. There were frequent conferences, with the result that Charles Keech, a sculptor, was commissioned to make a design. Upon suggestions made by J. A. Edgerton, purchasing agent for the post office department, Mr. Keech made a model of the proposed letter box and it was the subject of several prolonged conferences. Mr. Keech's design provides for a box of regulation size and shape. The front bears on the upper curve the word "Letters" and at the bottom "U. S. Mail." The handlebar and letters slide are similar to those on the boxes now in use, but care was taken to provide more effective action. The design for the sides was an American eagle with wide spreading wings but without the feathers, this being practically impossible in pressed steel, of which the boxes are to be constructed. The design for the front of the boxes proved acceptable, but the eagle was deemed rather conventional, despite the contention of the art commissioners, among whom were Mayor Mitchel, Robert W. De Forest, president of the Metropolitan Museum of art, and John Quincy Adams, assistant secretary, that the design was highly artistic and should be adopted. The post office department subsequently prepared a substitute design for the ends showing a shield with the letters "U. S." and a wing about it. The art commissioners disapproved of the substitute design, and Mr. Keech went to Washington and urged the acceptance of the eagle design. The new boxes, of which several hundred thousand are to be placed in all the cities of the country, will cost approximately $6 each.

SEAS ARE BENEFITED BY THE NEW FEDERAL REGULATION

Government Aids Captains in Finding Required Number of Men for Sailing.

By United Press.

Washington, June 12.—Uncle Sam, employment agent, is putting into real effect, to the benefit of employers and seamen alike, the new federal seamen's law, Secretary of Commerce Redfield declared today.

Under the law, ships cannot put to sea from an American port without the requisite number of registered seamen. Objections were made to the law because it was claimed it would work a hardship on trading vessel operators in that they could not readily secure registered seamen in some ports, this difficulty tending to hold up their shipping.

"Here is a good illustration of how the seamen's law is operating," Secretary Redfield said. "We received a few days ago a telegram from the captain of a schooner at Boothbay, Maine, saying that he could not find the required number of registered seamen at the port, and asking for permission to clear with what help he could employ.

"The port official had refused him clearance because he did not have the required quota of registered seamen.

"The Department immediately notified the port officials to make an investigation, asked the Department of Labor to notify through its representatives at Bath and other nearby ports any registered seamen there and send them to Boothbay, and gave assurance to the Captain that the government was looking out for him.

"Within a remarkably short time a sufficient number of able seamen to man his vessel arrived at Boothbay, idle men were given employment, and he was able to sail with a competent crew."

A similar case was cited at Jacksonville, Fla. A steamboat captain appealed to the department for permission to sail with unregistered seamen. Within a short time the Department of Labor agents, by cooperation with the Department of Commerce, placed at the disposal of the captain a sufficient crew of able seamen.

Frequently the department has found captains of vessels lacking in diligence in their efforts to live up to the requirements of the law, and such captains are under the suspicious eyes of watchful agents of the department, the Secretary said.

In one instance at Jackson, Fla., where a ship captain telegraphed the Department that he was unable to find registered seamen, it was shown that there were a number of such seamen available. The captain escaped with a "calling" and a warning against repetition of the offense.

"The law is working out to good advantage of both employers and seamen," the Secretary said. "Cooperation with the Department of Labor and Customs Officials enables the Commerce Department to deal with any situation quickly to the benefit of the seamen, vessel owner, and shippers."

ONE SPOONFUL GIVES ASTONISHING RESULTS

Seymour residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and is so THOROUGH a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis.

ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it, the gasses rumble and pass out. C. E. Loeritz.

MANAGERS AND TRAINMEN CONFER ABOUT WAGE SCALE

Answers by Managers will Bring Declaration if Conferences will Continue.

New York, June 12.—Conferences between railway managers and leaders of the train service brotherhoods were resumed here to-day when the managers answered numerous direct and hypothetical questions asked by the organizations before adjournment last Thursday concerning the pay of the trainmen on the basis suggested by the roads in their reply to the demands of the men for an 8-hour basic day, with time and half-time for overtime. It is expected that the answers of the roads will be followed by a declaration from the brotherhoods as to whether or not they can go further with the conferences.

Railroad officials point to the development early in the conferences that the intention of the employees was not to set a limit of 8 hours as a work-day, but rather to establish a basic day requiring a speed of 12 1/2 miles an hour for freight trains. This is regarded by the roads as an effort to limit the length of trains by conference, such plans having been defeated by various state legislatures before which train limit bills were introduced. The managers say that it would be impossible to increase the average speed of freight trains from 10 to 12 1/2 miles an hour unless lighter tonnage were hauled in a train unit, and in taking care of the needs of the shipping public such an alternative would practically be out of the question.

To do so would mean that the roads would have to provide additional tracks, locomotives and terminal facilities and even then there would be a strong probability that congestion would interfere seriously with the free movement of traffic and cause public inconvenience.

The attitude of the brotherhood leaders indicates that in order to avoid paying overtime wages at a premium rate the roads would be compelled to increase the number of trains, and employ more crews.

The impression has gone out that the brotherhoods are fighting to establish the principle of the 8-hour day, but according to the statement of Timothy Shea, assistant president of the firemen, a basic day is what is sought and the working day may be 8, 10, 12, 14 or 16 hours so long as it brings about more trains.

The estimated increase in operating costs in the event of success of the movement shows a wide variance in the computations by the roads and the men, but that the brotherhoods realize what the outcome would be was admitted by A. B. Garrettson, president of the conductors.

In the event of an abrupt ending of the conferences this week, the next movement in the negotiations

CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS.

The nomination of Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, as the vice-presidential nominee, gives great weight to the Republican national ticket. His nomination is a guarantee that Indiana will swing back into the column of Republican states electing Harry S. New and James E. Watson United States senators. Mr. Fairbanks was selected as Justice Hughes' running mate by an overwhelming decision of the delegates to the national convention. He is recognized throughout the country as a great statesman and leader.

Mr. Fairbanks' former service as the presiding officer of the senate gives him the experience that will be needed during the next four years which are to be important ones in the history of this country. Senators of both parties have nothing but commendation for the fair and unbiased manner in which he presided over the senate while he was vice-president. Mr. Fairbanks is peculiarly fitted for the position for which he was nominated and he will enter the coming campaign with a vigor and enthusiasm that has marked his work of the past. Republicans in Indiana and Americans throughout the country rejoice that he has been selected.

The statement of Justice Charles Evans Hughes in accepting the nomination as the presidential candidate on the Republican ticket rings with true Americanism. He touches briefly upon the vital issues of the day and in his direct, concise manner of expression makes his position clearly known. He sees the great work that is before the next president of the United States and is fully aware of the demand for clear cut policies. He is one of the very ablest men of this country today and is the type of American citizen that appeals to voters desiring to see this country in the hands of a capable executive, one who is fully able to face squarely the issues of the day and determine the proper solution for each. The public is greatly pleased with his action in immediately resigning as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court so that none of his duties as a public official might in any way be compromised by his nomination. Justice Hughes is a man of direct action and the kind that is needed at the White House today.

Colonel Roosevelt has given every indication that he will not become the Progressive presidential candidate. Although he has not issued a final statement to this effect Progressive leaders expect one to be forthcoming within a few hours. Roosevelt's action means that he will give his support to Hughes. The colonel has maintained that in this critical stage of American history there should be a change at the White House. By refusing to accept the nomination Col Roosevelt will prove his Americanism, for with the Republican party united and fighting for a common purpose the very thing that Col Roosevelt desires will be accomplished.

A "sublime indifference for the future" is the name of a disease which afflicts most students who "flunk out" of Princeton University, according to a statement by the Board of Student Editors today.—Princeton Correspondent to New York Herald.

And then another definition is "lack of energy."

EAGLES HEAR MEMORIAL SERMON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Members of Local Fraternal Order Pay Beautiful Tribute to Their Deceased Brothers.

With an impressive service at the St. Paul Congregational church Sunday afternoon, the members of the local Aerie of Eagles observed Memorial Day and paid tribute to their deceased brothers. The members of the lodge met at their hall and marched to the church in a body. The Rev. H. R. Boehn, the pastor, delivered an appropriate sermon. He told of the beautiful sentiment attached to fraternal brotherhoods and emphasized the value of the principles of brotherly love and friendship. The sermon was heard with great interest by the lodgemen and the visitors. Beautiful numbers were rendered by the choir of the church. After the ceremony at the church a committee went to River-view cemetery and placed bouquets on the graves of the deceased members.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Weil returned to their home in St. Louis today after spending a few days with relatives in this city.

MRS. EDISON RAPS
ABBREVIATED SKIRTS.

Hundreds Present When Inventor's Wife Hits Clothing—Urges Girls to Be Modest.

New York.—Hundreds of women recently heard well known women who were delegates to the National Federation of Women's Clubs convention discuss dress—the right and wrong kind of dress, the future dress and the cost of dress. All the speakers advocated greater individuality in dress.

Mrs. Thomas A. Edison made an appeal for greater modesty in dress, particularly of young women, and in no unmistakable terms assailed clothing which, she said, tended to lead sons down to degradation. She denounced "the present abbreviated skirts and uncovered shoulders," saying: "I had a father who frequently reminded me, 'Daughter, be modest.' I think this would be good advice to our girls today."

Her husband, Mrs. Edison said, had declared there was not more than one woman in a hundred who was well dressed.

An Ice Question
For Business Men

DO you have anyone in your employ who works 24 hours daily, for approximately 7 cents a day, and who performs an absolutely indispensable service?

No! You'd be mighty glad to have such an employee at ten times the cost, but it's beyond the bounds of possibility. And yet, right in your home, a cake of ice is working for you as no employee could or would! Therefore we say

ICE IS
More than a Product—It is
A SERVICE

Ice keeps the food-stuffs in your ice box pure and wholesome. It preserves them through hot, sultry days. It protects the health of your entire family. It adds to your comfort. It costs you a few pennies each day—approximately 7, perhaps.

It performs a service that you MUST have. You can not get along without it. Ice works for you 24 hours every day at a ridiculously low cost. Why not give such a cheap and useful servant a real chance? Use plenty of ice.

CALICO FROM THE SKY.

Windstorm Drops Bolt of Goods In Needy Woman's Yard.

Hume, Mo.—In a recent windstorm here a bolt of calico fell in Mrs. Jenny Harrie's chicken lot in the north part of the city. It was quite a lucky haul for Mrs. Harrie, when the price of calico is considered, and she needed the goods.

It is supposed that the calico was taken up in the clouds in the path of the tornado south of here. Where it came from no one knows.

Hog With Six Legs.

Puente, Cal.—While driving out a number of hogs from a pen on the Rowland ranch workmen in the employ of L. A. Meredith discovered that one sow was possessed of six legs. The animal has two extra forelegs perfectly formed, and all six legs are used by the animal in walking. Mr. Meredith says the two extra legs are just inside the "regular" forelegs and are somewhat smaller.

HAS ODD CAREER.

Woman at One Time Headed Six Living Generations.

Prarie du Chien, Wis.—Grandma Shrake is in her one hundred and fifth year, for she celebrated her one hundred and fourth birthday anniversary recently. She is a most remarkable woman in several respects. With the aid of a cane she is able to get about quite well, and she is always cheerful and happy. Up to a year ago she was able to read the newspapers, but her eyesight has failed fast since that time, and she is now able to recognize people only when they get within a few feet of her. She has a rugged constitution and is able to take care of three square meals a day and enjoy them.

At the birthday anniversary thirty-five of her relatives were present to do honor to the event, an event that is exceedingly rare.

While the circle were enjoying dinner it was figured out that this venerable old lady had 185 descendants living at the present time, as follows:

Three sons, of which Sylvester Ault, aged eighty-three, of Oelwein, Ia., was present at the celebration and who declares that he is still a young man; forty-six grandchildren, ninety-nine great-grandchildren, forty great-great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Shrake herself was the mother of ten children, of which the three sons are all that are living of the first generation.

And what a wonderful family record is Grandma Shrake's—the head at one time of six living generations, all female, the only known instance of the kind in the United States. Death has removed only two of the links. The six generations are: Mrs. Lydia Shrake of Wyoming, Mrs. Margaret Elder (deceased), Mrs. Rachel Goff (deceased), Mrs. Malissa Spaulding of California, Mrs. Cora Gulley of California. They all used to live at Wyalousing.

Grandma Lydia Thomas Ault-Shrake was born in Connellsburg, Fayette county, Pa., and at the age of four moved with her parents to Coshocton, O., where at the age of eighteen she married William Ault in May, 1832. To them were born five children—Louisa, Sylvester, Margaret, Elias and William. Two of these sons, Sylvester and William Ault, served in the late civil war, the former in the Fifteenth Wisconsin and the latter in Company A, Thirty-first Wisconsin. In September, 1839, her husband died, and two years later she married Jacob Shrake. In 1844 they moved to Green county, Wis., and in 1850 to Wyalousing, their home ever since. To the last union were born five children—Jacob of Bagley; Jane, David, Abner and George. Three of these sons served in the civil war, Jacob in Company A, Thirty-first Wisconsin; David in Company H, Wisconsin's Eagle regiment, and Abner in Company C, Forty-eighth Wisconsin. This makes five sons Grandma Shrake sent to the front in the dark days of the war, another remarkable thing to her credit and showing her patriotism. Her second husband, Mr. Shrake, who died in 1861, was also a soldier in the war of 1812.

Germans Maintain Heavy Artillery Fire on Ypres Salient Against the British—Austrians Claim Capture of Monte Lamerle, South of Asiago

London, June 12.—In the fighting on the front of Volhynia and Galicia, says the official Russian statement, the Russians took 400 officers and 35,000 men. They also captured thirty guns and an enormous quantity of booty.

The statement adds that the army of General Tschitzkyn alone, operating in the direction of Czernowitz, Bukowina, overwhelmed the Austro-Hungarians and took 18,000 prisoners. Since the present Russian offensive was started the Czar's troops have taken about 108,000 prisoners.

Three German infantry attacks against the French trenches on Hill 304 and the positions east of that elevation, in the Verdun sector were completely checked during the night by the French troops, says the official statement issued at the French war office.

Two German detachments penetrated the French advanced trenches in the forest of Apermont, southeast of St. Mihiel, the statement adds, but were later ejected.

The German artillery was very active in the Ypres salient, bombarding the town of Ypres and the region behind it to the south, maintaining a heavy shell fire for three hours on a front of 1,500 yards of British trenches from Hill 60 northward. The only infantry actions so far was a German attack on a British post in the Sanctuary wood, which was repulsed.

The Austrians, whose offensive on the Italian front has narrowed with in the past few days to the Sette Comuni plateau, concentrated their efforts against Monte Lamerle, south east of Asiago. Forces amounting to about one division were used in the repeated attacks made against this height.

The Austrian war office announces that the height was captured with five hundred prisoners, while the Italian official statement flatly contradicting this assertion, says that the Austrians were repulsed by an Italian counter attack and that one hundred prisoners remained in the hands of the Italian.

On the front from the Vallarea plateau to the Astico and in the Sugana valley, the Italian offensive continues and Rome announces fresh gains at several points as well as in a counter offensive on the Asiago plateau.

General Smuts, commanding the South African forces invading German East Africa from the north, reports progress in the northeastern corner of the German colony, where the British and South African troops are fighting to gain control of the Usambara railway and the Pangani river.

Late in May General Smuts, finding the Germans entrenched near Miocheni, on the Pangani, himself occupied a strong position in a narrow neck between the Pare mountains and the river, reports that his troops have crossed the Pangani by bridge at Mikocheni. Mombo, on the Usambara railway, west of Wilhelmstad, was occupied by the British.

In the southwestern corner of the German colony, Bismarckburg, on the Rhodesian frontier, was occupied.

EXPECT CRISIS BELOW BORDER

Flame of Anti-American Feeling Spreading.

REPLY TO CARRANZA NOTE

U. S. Communication to Mexico Is Ready—Said to Contain Sharp Rebuke For Language Used in Note to America.

Washington, June 12.—Mexican affairs are expected to take a critical turn within the next few days. Official reports from all parts of the Mexican republic indicate a rapidly spreading of the flame of anti-American feeling.

The Carranza government, which, from advices to the state department, is nearer than ever to the brink of a complete collapse, is either powerless to suppress the demonstrations that are taking place, or is making no effort to suppress them. Five different factions are at present operating independently of the de facto government, all of which, apparently, are taking advantage of the presence of American troops on Mexican soil to undermine Carranza.

Although both the state and war departments are without any fresh advices, it is feared that at any moment news will be received of an attack on American citizens somewhere in Mexico. The state department has been advised that a Pacific coast mail steamer is due at Acapulco, on the west coast, to take off the American refugees there, and arrangements have been made for the vessel to perform similar service at Salina Cruz.

No report has been received concerning the Americans still at Chihuahua, who made efforts to leave following the attack on the American consulate.

It is now expected that Secretary Lansing's reply to the Carranza demand for a withdrawal of the American forces will be dispatched to Mexico City within the next few days. It is understood to have been completed and is said to contain a refusal to comply with the demand for an immediate withdrawal.

Inasmuch as the communication is expected to contain a sharp rebuke for the language used by Carranza in his last note, officials are dubious as to the effect which it will have on the Mexican public.

URGES AMERICANS TO LEAVE

Acting Governor of Chihuahua, Mex., Issues Warning.

El Paso, Tex., June 12.—Mrs. Agustina Labansat, wife of a Carranza colonel, whose husband was formerly police chief under Villa in Chihuahua City, arrived from Chihuahua with a report that General Francisco Trevino, acting governor, is urging all Americans to leave at once and is offering to provide them safe escort to the border on a special train, if necessary.

Mrs. Labansat said that during the recent anti-American rioting in Chihuahua, General Trevino placed ample guards over all foreign consulates and gave orders to his officers to shoot any soldier molesting Americans. He asserted privately, however, she says, that he feared if the Americans did not leave he could not guarantee them protection as the sentinel in Mexico is increasing in violence as the duration of occupation of northern Chihuahua is drawn out.

DARIO RESTA WINS CHICAGO AUTO RACE

De Palma, Second, Regardless of Engine Trouble.

Chicago, June 12.—Dario Resta won the fastest 300-mile race ever driven by automobiles at Speedway park in three hours and two minutes and 31.65 seconds, at a speed of 98.61 miles an hour.

Ralph DePalma had the race well in hand and started out to push the last six miles at a speed never before seen in an actual contest, when a spring on his motor broke.

Undaunted, he disconnected the engine affected and sped around the course on the other three and won second place and its $6,000 prize.

It was a day of superlatives. Every winner of a prize, ten in all, drove faster than the fastest time made at Indianapolis on May 30, and the eleventh-hour withdrawal of the Indianapolis team had no effect on the merits of this race.

The winners of the prizes, the cars they drove, the elapsed time and their total prize money were:

Peugeot, Resta, 3:02:31.65, $14,000; Mercedes, De Palma, 3:04:25.37, $6,500; Sunbeam, Christeians, 3:07:55.4, $3,000; Hudson, Vail, 3:09:16.4, $1,500; Duesenberg, O'Donnell, 3:09:43.5, $1,300; Sunbeam, Galvin, 3:10:23.44, $1,200; Duesenberg, D'Alene, 3:15:55.7, $1,100; Hudson, McCarthy, 3:17:49.12, $900; Burman, Gable, 3:18:26.15, $800; Crawford, Lewis, 3:23:17.21, $700.

COMPLETE PLANS TO NAME WILSON

Democrats Begin to Gather at St. Louis.

CONTEST OVER SIX SEATS

Expected That Both Wilson and Marshall Will Be Nominated by Acclamation—Stone Arrives With Draft of Platform—Suffragists on Hand.

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—Forerunners of the 1,092 delegates, who are to nominate President Wilson and Vice President Marshall at the Democratic national convention this week, moved into St. Louis with the slogan of "peace, prosperity and preparedness." The convention holds its first session at noon Wednesday.

A contest over six seats from the District of Columbia in the convention was taken up at a meeting of the Democratic national committee today. The committee will also decide two contested seats on the national committee, one from Texas and one from the District of Columbia.

Thomas Love is contesting the seat of William Poindexter of Texas and four Democratic clubs in Washington are contesting the selection of John F. Costello as committeeman.

Every one of the delegates to the convention either is instructed or committed to the renomination of President Wilson and the vast majority of them, according to many national committeemen, are ready to rename Vice President Marshall. A few votes are expected to cast for some favorite sons for the vice presidential place, but the party leaders assembling here predict the other names may be withdrawn and that Marshall's nomination, like that of President Wilson, will be made by acclamation.

Senator William J. Stone of Missouri arrived, bringing what was said to be a draft of the party platform, with its main planks sketched in detail by President Wilson. Senator Stone is slated to be chairman of the committee on resolutions and it is understood that he and the members of the committee will put President Wilson's ideas on certain planks in written form and adopt other planks bearing on preparedness and foreign policy just as they have been written by the president.

Women suffragists who led the fight for the suffrage plank in the Republican platform are ready to wage a similar campaign for a suffrage plank in the Democratic platform. Members of the committee from the suffrage states are expected to lend their aid.

There are unconfirmed reports that William J. Bryan, though not a delegate, would find some way to precipitate a fight on the preparedness plank, but none of his friends here were in a position to say how he might touch on the issue in a convention in which he is not a delegate. Mr. Bryan will only be able to address the convention with the unanimous consent of its 1,092 delegates, and he may not occupy a seat on the floor of the convention unless both a delegate and his alternate retire and give him their proxy.

Tammany is sending the largest contingent of any state. The New York men are especially interested in the keynote speech to be delivered by former Governor Martin J. Glynn of New York as temporary chairman of the convention. He and Senator Ollie James of Kentucky, who is to be permanent chairman, arrived today.

FOR SPECIAL PENSION LAW

Proposes to Honor Officers of Civil War By Provisions.

Washington, June 12.—A strong movement is under way to secure the enactment of legislation to create a civil war volunteer officers' retired list. If this legislation should pass, many volunteer civil war officers in Indiana would be placed on a retired list and receive emoluments commensurate with the rank which they respectively held in the army during the civil war.

Officers who served two years or longer are to receive half the pay of officers of similar rank in the regular army, navy or marine corps. Officers who served less than two years but more than six months shall receive proportionate pay, based on length of service.

There are now about 7,000 surviving civil war volunteer officers who would draw pay under this bill. Their average age is seventy-eight.

James May Be Made Chairman.

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—President Wilson has let it become known that he will like to have Senator Ollie James of Kentucky made permanent chairman of the convention. Senator James acted in this capacity at the Baltimore convention.

France Considering Measure Providing Bounty to Mothers.

Paris, June 12.—Professor Maurice Letulle of the Academy of Medicine in an article in the Matin urges the passage of Paul Benetaz's bill now before the chamber of deputies, proposing that from January next the state pay each mother 500 francs for her first born, 1,000 for the second born, 2,000 for the third born, and 1,000 for each child thereafter, making payment a year after birth if the child is living. The father is to get 2,000 francs when he is the parent of four.

CHAPTER IX.

We Attain the Ottawa.

It was not yet dawn when the stir in the camp aroused me, and the sun had not risen above the bluffs, or begun to tinge the river, when our laden canoes left the bank and commenced their day's journey up stream. D'Artigny was off in advance, departing indeed before I had left the tent, the chief seated beside him. I caught but a glimpse of them as the canoe rounded the bend in the bank, and slipped silently away through the lingering shadows, yet it gladdened me to know my eyes were turned toward my tent until they vanished.

A new distribution had been arranged, Chevet accompanying the sergeant, leaving the commissaire and me alone, except for the pere, who had position in the bow. I observed this new arrangement from underneath lowered lashes, but without comment, quietly taking the place assigned me, and shading my face from the first rays of the sun.

At noon we landed in a sheltered cove, brilliant with wild flowers, and partook of food, the rearward canoes joining us, but D'Artigny was still ahead, perhaps under orders to keep away. To escape Cassion I clambered up the front of the cliff, and had view from the summit, marking the sweep of the river for many a league, a scene of wild beauty never to be forgotten. I lingered there at the edge until the voice of the commissaire recalled me to my place in the canoe.

It is of no consequence now what we conversed about during that long afternoon, as we pushed steadily on against the current. Cassion endeavored to be entertaining and I made every effort to encourage him, although my secret thoughts were not pleasant ones. He had set out to overcome my scruples, to conquer my will, and was merely biding his time, seeking to learn the best point of attack. It was with this end in view that he kept me to himself, banishing Chevet, and compelling D'Artigny to remain well in advance. He was testing me now by his tales of Quebec, his boasting of friendship with the governor, his stories of army adventure, and the wealth he expected to amass through his official connections. Yet the very tone he assumed, the conceit shown in his narratives, only served to add to my dislike. This creature was my husband, yet I shrank from him, and once, when he dared to touch my hand, I drew it away as though it were contamination. It was then be jealous of Pere Allouez yonder, for of him I see far the most. Why do you pick out D'Artigny on whom to vent your anger?"

"I like not the way he eyes you, nor your secret meetings with him in Quebec."

"If he even sees me I know it not, and as for secret meetings, knew you not that Sister Celeste was with me while we talked?"

"Not in the governor's palace."

"You accuse me of that then," indignantly. "Because I am your wife you can insult, yet it was your hand that drew aside the curtain and found me alone. Do you hope to gain my respect by such base charges as that, monsieur?"

"Do you deny that he had been with you?"

"I? Do I deny! It is not worthy my while. Why should I? We were not married then, nor like to be to my knowledge. Why, then, if I wished, was it not my privilege to speak with the Sieur d'Artigny? I have found him a very pleasant and polite young man."

"A pauper, his only fortune the sword at his side."

"Ah, I knew not even that he possessed one. Yet of what interest can all this be to me, monsieur, now that I am married to you?"

That my words brought him no comfort was plain enough to be seen, yet I doubt if it ever occurred to his mind that I simply made sport, and sought to anger him. It was on his mind to say more, yet he choked the words back, and sat there in moody silence, scarce glancing at me again during the long afternoon. But when we finally made landing for the night, it was plain to be seen that his vigilance was no wise relaxed, for, although he avoided me himself, the watchful Jesuit was ever at my side, no doubt in obedience to his orders. As we were eating a party of fur traders, bound east, came ashore in a small fleet of canoes and joined the men below, building their fires slightly upstream. At last Pere Allouez left me alone and descended to them, eager to learn the news from Montreal. Yet, although seemingly I was now left alone, I had no thought of adventuring in the darkness, as I felt convinced the watchful priest would never have deserted my side had he not known that other eyes were keeping vigil.

From that moment I never felt myself alone or unobserved. Cassion in person did not make himself obnoxious, except that I was always seated beside him in the boat, subject to his conversation and attentions. However it was managed I know not, but my uncle never approached me alone, and only twice did I gain glimpse of Sieur d'Artigny—once, when his canoe returned to warn us of dangerous water ahead, and once when he awaited us beside the landing at Montreal. Yet even these occasions yielded me new courage, for, as our eyes met I knew no was still my friend, waiting, as I was, the opportunity for a better understanding. This knowledge brought tears of gratitude to my eyes and a thrill of hope to my heart. I was no longer utterly alone.

We were three days at Montreal, the men busily engaged in adding to their store of provisions. I had scarcely a glimpse of the town, as I was given lodgings in the convent close to the river bank, and the pere was my constant companion during hours of daylight.

We departed at dawn, and the sun was scarce an hour high when the prows of our canoes turned into the Ottawa. Now we were indeed in the wilderness, fronting the vast unknown country of the West, with every league of travel leaving behind all trace of civilization. There was nothing before us save a few scattered missions, presided over by ragged priests, and an occasional fur trader's station, the headquarters of wandering couriers du bois. On every side were the vast prairies and stormy lakes, roamed over by savage men and beasts through whom we must make our way in hardship, danger and toil.

Our progress up the Ottawa was so slow, so toilsome, the days such a routine of labor and hardship, the scenes along the shore so similar, that I lost all conception of time. Except for the Jesuit I had scarcely a companion, and there were days, I am sure, when we did not so much as exchange a word.

The men had no rest from labor, even Cassion changing from boat to boat as necessity arose, urging them to renewed efforts. The water was low, the rapids more than usually dangerous, so that we were compelled to portage more often than usual. Once the leading canoe ventured to shoot a rapid not considered perilous, and had a great hole torn in its prow by a sharp rock. The men got ashore, say-that hot anger leaped into his eyes, and his true nature found expression before he could restrain the words: "Mon dieu! What do you mean, you chit?"

"Only that I am not won by a few soft words, monsieur," I answered coldly.

"But you are my wife; 'twill be well for you to remember that."

"Nor am I likely to forget, yet because a priest has mumbled words over us does not make me love you."

"Sacred!" he burst forth, yet careful to keep his voice pitched to my ears alone, "you think me a plaything, but you shall learn yet that I have claws. Bah! do you imagine I fear the coxcomb ahead?"

"To whom do you refer, monsieur?"

"Such innocence! to that bootlicker of La Salle's to whom you give your smiles and pretty words."

"Rene d'Artigny!" I exclaimed pleasantly, and then laughed. "Why how ridiculous you are, monsieur. Better ing the wreck, but lost their store of provisions, and we were a day there making the damaged canoe again serviceable.

This delay gave me my only glimpse of D'Artigny, still dripping from his involuntary bath, and so busily engaged at repairs as to be scarcely conscious of my presence on the bank above him. Yet I can hardly say that, for once he glanced up, and our eyes met, and possibly he would have joined me, but for the sudden appearance of Cassion, who swore at the delay, and ordered me back to where the tent had been hastily erected. I noticed D'Artigny straighten up, angered that Cassion dared speak to me so harshly, but I had no wish then to precipitate an open quarrel between the two men, and so departed quickly. Later, Father Allouez told me that in the overturning of the canoe the young sieur had saved the life of the Algonquin chief, bringing him ashore unconscious, helpless from a broken shoulder. This accident to Altudah led to the transferring of the injured Indian to our canoe and caused Cassion to join D'Artigny in advance.

It was five days later, and in the heart of all that was desolate and drear, when the long-sought opportunity came in most unexpected fashion. We had made camp early, because of rough water ahead, the passage of which it was not deemed best to attempt without careful exploration. So, while the three heavily laden canoes drew up against the bank, and prepared to spend the night, the leading canoe was stripped and sent forward, manned only with the most expert of the Indian paddlers to make sure the perils of the current. From the low bank to which I had climbed I watched the preparations for the dash

Leaning far out, grasping a branch to keep from falling, I distinguished the canoe at the upper landing, and the Indians busily preparing camp. At first I saw nothing of any white man, but was gazing still when D'Artigny emerged from some shadow and stepped down beside the boat. I know not what instinct prompted him to turn and look up intently at the bluff towering above. I scarcely comprehended either swift impulse led me to undo the neckerchief at my throat and hold it forth in signal. An instant he stared upward, shading his eyes with one hand.

I must have seemed a vision clinging there against the sky, yet all at once the truth burst upon him, and with a wave of the arm, he sprang up the low bank and joined his Indians. I could not hear what he said, but with a single word he left them and disappeared among the trees at the foot of the bluff.

He must have scrambled straight up the steep face of the bluff, for it could have been scarcely more than a minute when I heard him crunching a passage through the bushes, and then saw him emerge above the edge. Clinging to a tree limb, his eyes sought eagerly to locate me, and when I stepped forward, he sprang erect and bowed, jerking his hat from his head. There was about his action the enthusiasm of a boy, and his face glowed with an eagerness and delight which instantly broke down every barrier between us.

"You waved to me?" he exclaimed. "You wished me to come?"

"Yes," I confessed, swept from my guard by his enthusiasm. "I have been anxious to confer with you, and this is my first opportunity."

"Why I thought you avoided me," he burst forth. "It is because I felt so that I have kept away."

"There was nothing else I could do but pretend," I exclaimed, gaining control over my voice as I spoke. "My every movement has been watched since we left Quebec; this is the first moment I have been left alone—if, indeed, I am now." And I glanced about doubtfully into the shadows of the forest.

"You imagine you may have been followed here? By whom? Cassion?"

"By himself or some emissary. Pere Allouez has been my jailer, but chances to be disabled at present. The commissaire permitted me to climb here alone, believing you to be safely camped above the rapids, yet his suspicions may easily revive."

"His suspicions!" the sieur laughed softly. "So that then is the trouble? It is to keep us apart that he bids me make separate camp each night; and assigns me to every post of peril. I feel the honor, mademoiselle, yet why am I especially singled out for so great a distinction?"

"He suspects us of being friends. He knew I conferred with you at the convent, and even believes that you were with me hidden behind the curtain in the governor's office."

"Then will I assay it alone," I replied, not displeased at his refusal. "I am cramped from sitting in the canoe so long."

"Twill be a hard climb, and they tell me the pere has strained a tendon of his leg coming ashore."

"And what of that?" I burst forth, giving vent to my indignation. "Am I a ten-year-old to be guarded every step I take? 'Tis not far to the summit, and no danger. You can see yourself the trail is not steep. Faith! I will go now, just to show that I am at liberty."

He laughed, an unpleasant sound to it, yet made no effort to halt me. The rude path I followed was narrow, but not steep enough to prove wearisome, and, as it led up through a crevice in the earth, finally emerged at the top of the bluff at a considerable distance above the camp I had left. Thick woods covered the crest, although there were open plains beyond, and I was obliged to advance to the very edge in order to gain glimpse of the river.

Once there, however, with footing secure on a flat rock, the scene outspread was one of wild and fascinating beauty. Directly below me were the rapids, rock strewn, the white spray leaping high in air, the swift, green water swirling past in tremendous volume. It scarcely seemed as though boats could live in that smother, or find passage between those jutting rocks, yet as I gazed more closely I could trace the channel close in against the opposite shore, and note where the swift current bore back across the river.

Leaning far out, grasping a branch to keep from falling, I distinguished the canoe at the upper landing, and the Indians busily preparing camp. At first I saw nothing of any white man, but was gazing still when D'Artigny emerged from some shadow and stepped down beside the boat. I know not what instinct prompted him to turn and look up intently at the bluff towering above. I scarcely comprehended either swift impulse led me to undo the neckerchief at my throat and hold it forth in signal. An instant he stared upward, shading his eyes with one hand.

"But you explained to him?"

"I tried to, but only to regret the effort. Giant as he is physically, his intellect is that of a big boy. All he can conceive of is revenge—a desire to crush with his hands. He hates Cassion, because the man has robbed him of the use of my father's money; but for my position he cares nothing. To his mind the wrong has all been done to him, and I fear he will brood over it until he seeks revenge. If he does he will ruin everything."

D'Artigny stood silent, evidently in thought, endeavoring to grasp the threads of my tale.

"How did you attain the summit of this bluff?" he questioned at last.

"Yonder; there is a deer trail leading down."

"And you fear Cassion may follow?"

"He will likely become suspicious if I am long absent, and either seek me himself or send one of his men. This is the first moment of freedom I have experienced since we left Quebec. I hardly know how to behave myself."

"And we must guard it from being the last," he exclaimed, a note of determination and leadership in his voice. "There are questions I must ask, so that we may work together in harmony, but Cassion can never be al-through those madly churning waters above. Cassion was issuing his orders loudly, but exhibited no inclination to accompany the party, and suddenly the frail craft shot out from the shore, with D'Artigny at the steering paddle, and every Indian braced for his task, and headed boldly into the smother. They vanished as though swallowed by the mist, Cassion and a half dozen soldiers racing along the shore line in an effort to keep abreast of the laboring craft.

It was a wild, desolate spot in which we were, a mere rift in the bluffs, which seemed to overhang us, covered with a heavy growth of forest. The sun was still an hour high, although it was twilight already beside the river, when Cassion and his men came straggling back to report that the canoe had made safe passage, and, taking advantage of his good humor, I proposed a climb up an opening of the bluff, down which led a deer trail plainly discernible.

"Not I," he said, casting a glance upward. "The run over the rocks will do me for exercise tonight."

"Then will I assay it alone," I replied, not displeased at his refusal. "I am cramped from sitting in the canoe so long."

"Twill be a hard climb, and they tell me the pere has strained a tendon of his leg coming ashore."

"And what of that?" I burst forth, giving vent to my indignation. "Am I a ten-year-old to be guarded every step I take? 'Tis not far to the summit, and no danger. You can see yourself the trail is not steep. Faith! I will go now, just to show that I am at liberty."

He laughed, an unpleasant sound to it, yet made no effort to halt me. The rude path I followed was narrow, but not steep enough to prove wearisome, and, as it led up through a crevice in the earth, finally emerged at the top of the bluff at a considerable distance above the camp I had left. Thick woods covered the crest, although there were open plains beyond, and I was obliged to advance to the very edge in order to gain glimpse of the river.

Once there, however, with footing secure on a flat rock, the scene outspread was one of wild and fascinating beauty. Directly below me were the rapids, rock strewn, the white spray leaping high in air, the swift, green water swirling past in tremendous volume. It scarcely seemed as though boats could live in that smother, or find passage between those jutting rocks, yet as I gazed more closely I could trace the channel close in against the opposite shore, and note where the swift current bore back across the river.

Leaning far out, grasping a branch to keep from falling, I distinguished the canoe at the upper landing, and the Indians busily preparing camp. At first I saw nothing of any white man, but was gazing still when D'Artigny emerged from some shadow and stepped down beside the boat. I know not what instinct prompted him to turn and look up intently at the bluff towering above. I scarcely comprehended either swift impulse led me to undo the neckerchief at my throat and hold it forth in signal. An instant he stared upward, shading his eyes with one hand.

"But you explained to him?"

"I tried to, but only to regret the effort. Giant as he is physically, his intellect is that of a big boy. All he can conceive of is revenge—a desire to crush with his hands. He hates Cassion, because the man has robbed him of the use of my father's money; but for my position he cares nothing. To his mind the wrong has all been done to him, and I fear he will brood over it until he seeks revenge. If he does he will ruin everything."

D'Artigny stood silent, evidently in thought, endeavoring to grasp the threads of my tale.

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

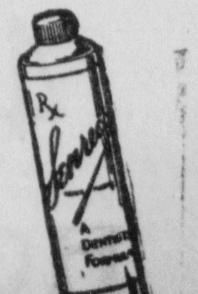

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, 304 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.

"GIRL MYSTERY" IS AMUSING

Girls Disguise Faces in Pretty Colored Masks and Boys Guess Identities of Lasses.

In the game of "Girl Mystery," all the girls wear the pretty colored masks obtainable nowadays for a few cents—disguising their faces and hair and allowing only their eyes to be exposed to view. The girls then stand on chairs behind a curtain or screen, allowing their heads only to appear above, and the boys equipped with pencils and paper proceed to guess the identities of the dainty lasses and to write their names down in order. The player who makes the most correct guesses obtains the prize.

ROACH—ROCKWOOD

The following is taken from the Indianapolis Star Sunday and gives an account of the marriage of Miss Mabel Roach, formerly of this city, and Charles A. Rockwood.

One of the notable weddings of the month was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde J. Roach, 2626 North Meridian street, at 8:30 o'clock last evening, the bride being their only daughter, Miss Mabel Roach, and the bridegroom Charles Ainsworth Rockwood, of Nevada, Mo. Countless artistic baskets overflowing with fragrant pink roses were arranged in all the rooms, making a garden effect, and in the ceremony room was an altar of palms towering to the ceiling with white vine-covered cupolas of ferns and hydrangeas gleaming with tall cathedral candles on either side.

Miss Blanche Clarke, harpist, played a program of nuptial airs as the guests were gathering which changed to "The Bridal Chorus," from "Lohengrin," for the entrance of the wedding party.

The bride was beautiful in her exquisite gown of heavy bridal satin fashioned with a satin bodice embroidered with silver and trimmed with point and duchess lace. Her short skirt was trimmed with drapery of filmy tulle and her long court train hung from the shoulders. Her veil, which fell over her face, was edged with point lace. The bridal bouquet was of lilies of the valley with a small cluster of Sweetheart roses.

His mother then mourned him for dead until recently a flash came over the wire from the cousin in Nebraska that Short had been found.

Surprised on Birthday.

Edward Alberring was tendered a pleasant surprise Sunday when about thirty-five of his friends gathered at his home on South Pine street to remind him of his birthday anniversary. A most pleasant afternoon was spent, during which refreshments were served. Present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Alberring, Hiram Alberring, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Moritz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dune, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rittman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heideman and family, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hunterman, Miss Flora Koop, Miss Edna Von Strohe and Ed. Jobstvogt, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Von Strohe and family and Mrs. Mary Newkirk, of Waymansville, and George Von Strohe of Columbus.
